

Press Release

Veolia Transportation Wins Stanford University Shuttle Contract Contract Award is Three Years with Options

Palo Alto, CA – September 30, 2009 – Veolia Transportation has been awarded a contract to operate Stanford University’s bus shuttle service known as the Marguerite Shuttle. The contract is for three years with a one-year extension option.

The announcement was made this week by Veolia Transportation’s Regional Vice President for Northern California, Ron Bushman. In making the announcement, Bushman said, “Partnering with Stanford University to provide much needed shuttle service to the schools, medical center and hospitals is very exciting for us. Veolia Transportation has a strong presence in California and we look forward to this opportunity to deliver the same high quality transportation and customer service for which we are known.”

The fleet of 43 vehicles operates seven days per week and provides transportation to students, faculty and staff, servicing the entire campus. This includes the medical center comprised of the Stanford School of Medicine, the Stanford Hospital and Clinics and the Lucile Packard Children’s Hospital. This service will also extend to two Caltrain stations that transport approximately 5,000 Stanford students, employees and faculty to the campus each day.

About Veolia Transportation

Veolia Transportation is the largest private-sector operator of multiple modes of transit in North America, including bus, rail, paratransit, shuttle, sedan and taxi services. The company has a workforce of over 20,000 employees and contractors, and operates 200 contracts for cities in North America, including Los Angeles, Denver, Phoenix, Seattle, San Francisco, Baltimore and Atlanta. The company also operates several major commuter rail networks, including Boston, San Diego, Austin and Miami, providing a range of rail services to clients.

Veolia Transportation is part of Veolia Transport, the world’s largest private operator of multiple modes of public transit, including bus, rail, paratransit, shuttle, ferry and taxi services. Veolia Transport operates contracts for 5,000 city transit authorities in 28 countries, and completes 2.63 billion passenger trips per year. The company operates some of the most sophisticated rail systems in the world in Australia, Germany, The Netherlands and the UK.

For more information, visit www.veoliatransportation.com

Media Contact: Valerie Michael, Director of Corporate Communications, 702.425.8419
valerie.michael@veoliatransportation.com

--end--